Introducing two new Game Tables in the American Prairie style

As we head into the Fall season , we start to think of preparation for the upcoming holidays. With the onset of cooler weather, indoor activities begin to take precedence over the summer;s outdoor fun.

In order to assist you in planning for those holiday family gatherings, Drawknife is introducing two new game tables. Although these were initially built in the American Prairie style, these game designs can be adapted to our other lines as well.

The first offering is a six-sided Poker Table, a modified version of the more common octagonal style. The top features the usual center area and individual leather-lined player chip sections, with the addition of drop-in cup holders at each place.

The table body also includes black iron square clavos details at each corner. The overall style makes this table a perfect addition to a man cave or family game room.

The second new table is a combination chess and backgammon table, with a reversible game board.
